

Never-ending News

www.neverendingstories.co.za

Dear Boys and Girls

Did you spot what Sally did in our last newsletter? All the toys had great fun with Sally's challenge. Where did you decide to go to listen for sounds?

Funny Fran loved Timid Timothy's one liners and tried them out on Grandpa Ben.

Spring has seen the return of an old friend to Never-ending Stories. Welcome home Cathy Caterpillar!

All my love

Martha Mouse

P.S. Do you have any idea where Sally Scribbler has gone? Do you think she is responsible for the disappearing items?

Martha Mouse's Ladybirds

To welcome all the new creatures to the garden she is making ladybirds. Martha Mouse thought you might enjoy making one too.

There is a collection at the front door of Never-ending Stories. Where are you going to put yours?

Materials:

Jar Lid; glue; scissors

Instructions:

- You can cover the lid with a piece of black paper.
- Cut out the shapes below
- Glue the red wings onto the lid. You can make them together like he's sitting or spread apart a bit like he's flying.
- Glue the head onto the lid (over top of the wings).
- Glue on the spots.

September 2015

Garden I-Spy with Eager Emily

Eager Emily is counting all the new creepy crawlies by playing I-spy with Confident Charlie on the rooftop.

Why don't you give it a try in your garden? Don't you get on your rooftop!

Funny Fran's Antonyms

Confident Charlie taught Funny Fran a new word for opposites, antonyms. Can you think of the antonyms for these words?

Leave; Sick; Similar; Cry; Cautious; Tired; Easy

Timid Timothy's Word Scramble

Timid Timothy's reading The Very Hungry Caterpillar by Eric Carle. He has managed to muddle up the words in these sentences. Can you put the words in the right order to make a sentence that makes sense?

On ate Monday he apple through one look for He started to food some

That he had ache night a stomach

Funny Fran's Book Suggestions

How Never-ending Stories Began

She was helping Martha Mouse repack the pencils and beads when she noticed a movement out of the corner of her eye. She quickly motioned to Martha Mouse to come.

As quietly as they could they tiptoed round the corner to see if they could spy the culprit but alas whoever or whatever it was had disappeared taking with them an old hairpin.

Who or what on earth could it be? Why on earth would they need an old hairpin?

September Events

7 to 13 September: National Book Week (returns late library books and don't pay fines)

24 September Heritage Day

