Dear Boys and Girls

I'm pleased to report we had a wonderful Easter and our friend Bernard Bunny did a great job hiding our Easter Eggs. Grandpa Ben's trick was not as amusing as he had hoped as I managed to unscramble all his files. Needless to say we all ended up helping restore the books with a few grumbles of course from Sally Scribbler and surprisingly, from Timid Timothy. We celebrated Mr Anderson's Birthday with each of us choosing our favourite book. Our contribution to Earth Day was collecting old cans which we on use for candle holders.

All my love

Winter Activities

Timid Timothy is compiling a list of the reasons he prefers winter to summer. While Eager Emily is making a list of the things she loves to do.

What would be on your list of reasons to love winter and winter things to do?

Guess the weather

Because winter hasn't yet arrived in full force, Martha Mouse has made a chart so everyone can see the weather forecast.

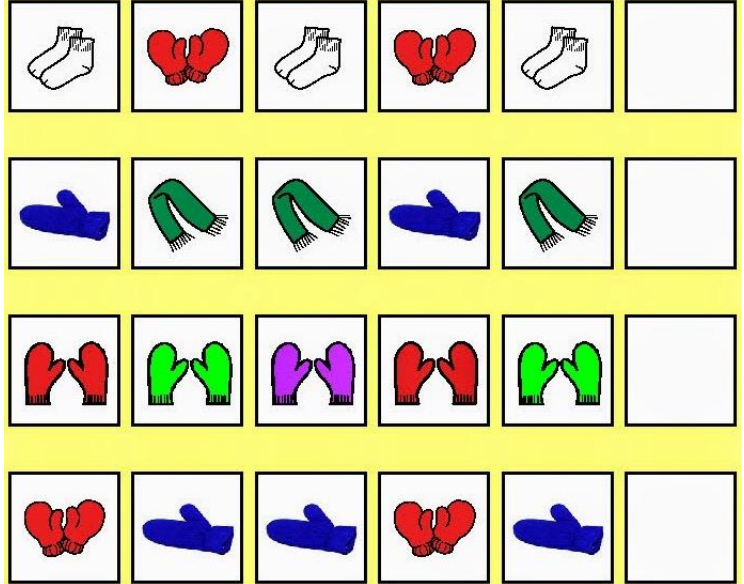

Cut out the chart below. Cut out the arrows and ask Mom or Dad to put a pin through the middle of the chart and fasten the arrows. Check the weather when you wake up and move the arrows. Then you can show everyone at school what the weather will be like for the day.

Confident Charlie's Sudoku

Confident Charlie loves puzzles and he's got a challenging one. Can you help him?

Draw the next picture in the patten in the open block.

How Never-ending Stories Began

Martha Mouse realised that winter was nearly here. The sun took longer to rise and it felt like it started setting set almost as quickly as it rose. It was all hands on deck as the toys made preparations for the coming rain.

Martha Mouse remembered, as she nodded off, that there was an old piece of plastic to cover the bookshelves. She had a sinking feeling that they had forgotten to hang it out to dry last spring and it would be covered in thick, green mould.

I must remind Confident Charlie and Eager Emily to clamber into the rafters to inspect the tiles she thought. Perhaps Timid Timothy suggestion of using the pine needles from the field for insulation would work.
